Instructions to Authors

Original papers concerned with the field of reproductive biology and written in idiomatic English are considered for publication in Biology of Reproduction. The Society for the Study of Reproduction does not require persons submitting papers to the journal to be members of the Society. All manuscripts are refereed critically by two or more members of the Editorial Board or consultants. Acceptance is based on scientific content and presentation of material. The Editors select reviewers, correspond with authors, and make final decisions about manuscripts.

Authors are asked to submit a covering letter with the manuscript stating: 1) the manuscript represents original, unpublished material; 2) the manuscript is not under editorial consideration elsewhere; 3) studies were performed in accordance with Guiding Principles for the Care and Use of Research Animals promulgated by the Society for the Study of Reproduction; and 4) authors agree to honor page charges if the manuscript is published. The Editors request that authors provide names and addresses of four potential reviewers.

Send original and three copies of each manuscript, including all illustrative material, to:

GENERAL INFORMATION. Authors should prepare manuscripts according to the Council of Biology Editors Style Manual, 5th ed. (1983). Authors whose first language is not English should arrange for manuscripts to be written in idiomatic English prior to submission.

Manuscripts of any length are admissible. Manuscripts must be typewritten and double-spaced with one-inch margins on one side of good quality, 8-1/2" X 11" paper. The lines of the text should be prenumbered in the margin, preferably continuously throughout the manuscript. If necessary, every fifth line may be numbered by hand. Manuscripts produced by dot-matrix printers should have large, dark type, with punctuation and descenders of the letters p, q, y and g below the line. Authors may be requested to retype manuscripts that are difficult to read.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION. The manuscript should be arranged in the following order: title page, abstract (no more than 200 words), introduction, materials and methods, results, discussion, acknowledgments, references, tables, figure legends, and illustrations (line drawings, graphs, and continuous-tone prints).

Title Page. The title page should contain the complete article title, a running page headline not to exceed 53 characters, and a list of three to six key words to be used for indexing. The person to whom correspondence and requests for reprints are to be addressed (include telephone number) should be indicated.

Materials and Methods. This section should provide the reader with sufficient information to replicate the work. The generic or chemical names of all drugs and chemicals must be stated at first mention, and the city, state or country of cited manufacturers must be specified. Although it is not necessary to give details of published methodology, any modifications must be described. Information regarding statistical analysis of the data is appropriately included in this section.

Results. The results section may contain references to tables and figures, but without discussion.

References. In the body of the paper, references to authors should appear as follows: Doe and Smith (1972); if the same authors have two papers in the same year, Doe and Smith (1972a,b); if the paper has more than two authors, Doe et al. (1972).

The reference list should be typed double-spaced with references in alphabetical order unless the authors of two or more entries are the same. In those cases, the citations should be in chronological order. A letter suffix (e.g., 1981a) should be used if more than one reference has exactly the same authors for the same year. The names of all authors must be listed in this section.

The format for citations in this section should conform to the standard for bibliographic references prescribed by the American National Standards Institute (1977) and adopted by the Council of Biology Editors, Index Medicus, BioSciences Information Service (BIOSIS), and other institutions and organizations.

A paper that has been accepted for publication may be cited in the reference section if the name of the journal and the year of publication are given. Authors should provide two copies of such papers for the reviewers. No references to papers in preparation, unpublished data, or papers submitted for publication are permitted in the reference section; such references should be incorporated into the text.

Abbreviations. Abbreviations used in the body of the paper should be defined at first mention: adrenocorticotrophic hormone (ACTH), human chorionic gonadotropin (hCG), etc. Abbreviations recognized by scientists outside the field of reproductive biology may be used without definitions: ml, IU, i.v., g, etc.

The Society has decided against adopting the nomenclature for polypeptide hormones proposed by the Joint Commission on Biochemical Nomenclature. Therefore, the journal accepts follicle-stimulating hormone (FSH), not follitropin; luteinizing hormone (LH), not lutropin, etc. If the proposed nomenclature appears in a manuscript, it shall be changed to currently accepted terminology.

Tables. Tables should be as simple as possible. Each must be typed, titled, numbered in Arabic numerals and double-spaced on separate sheets of paper. Explanatory matter should appear in footnotes that are double-spaced and identified by superscript letters. No more than three (3) margin-to-margin horizontal lines per table are permitted. Only in exceptional cases will the journal print tables lengthwise on a page.

ILLUSTRATIVE MATERIALS. Each figure should have an adhesive label attached to its back designating top, author's name, and the figure's number.

Figure legends should be typed on a separate sheet of paper; numbers and letters should be consistent in style with those used in the illustration. Note the conventions for abbreviations used in the journal so that usage in illustrations and text is consistent. Magnification in legends or reference bars on figures are required.

Reduction and Enlargement. Line drawings, graphs, and continuous-tone prints should be sized for reproduction at 100%. One-column material should be 3-1/2 inches wide and two-column material should be 7-1/4 inches wide. The maximum length for a single figure or plate is 9 inches. If the dimensions of a figure are the maximum allowed (7-1/4 inches by 9 inches), the figure's legend will necessarily be printed on the facing page of the journal.

Line Drawings and Graphs. Lines must be dark and sharply drawn. Solid black, white, or bold designs should be used for histograms because light stippling or gray tones may be lost in reproduction. Lettering and symbols must be large enough to remain legible if the line drawing has to be reduced. Freestyle hand lettering or drawing is not acceptable. One original (glossy prints or original artwork) should be submitted for reproduction; photocopies are acceptable for the two review copies.

Color Prints. The journal does accept color prints; however, a substantial additional cost will be incurred. Estimates will be obtained in advance of production, and authors must approve the charges before the manuscript can be published.

Continuous-tone Prints. Four sets of continuous-tone prints (photomicrographs, autoradiographs, etc.) must be submitted, one set of which should be marked "for reproduction." The author's name,
